

On the cover

The subsidies that make borrowing irresistible need to be phased out: leader, page 9. Most Western economies sweeten the cost of borrowing. That is a bad idea, pages 19-22. A new proposal seeks to make banks' debts safe for taxpayers: Free exchange, page 70

Misery with a silver lining
- 49 Charlemagne
Europe's boat people

Britain and Europe Winning a referendum to keep Britain in Europe should be the start of reform, not the end: leader, page 10. Emboldened and strengthened by his electoral triumph, David Cameron sets out to finish what he began a decade ago, page 50. A plan to tackle the EU migration crisis is woefully inadequate: leader, page 14 and Charlemagne, page 49

Farming in China A drive for self-sufficiency in food comes at a growing cost, page 39. As others cut farm support, China spends more, page 40

Paternity leave Both parents should spend time at home with their babies: leader, page 13. Men have long been discouraged from playing an equal role at home. This is starting to change, page 53. Children whose fathers take even short spells of paternity leave do better, page 54

Cuba The transformation of the economy needs to happen much faster: leader, page 10. Despite the thaw with the United States, politics is paralysing the process of economic reform, page 31. The trickiest task is to unify exchange rates that are miles apart, page 32

Venture capital An industry that specialises in spotting potential insurgents faces some of its own, page 63

How to get a top job A book on the persistence of elites is an unexpected guide to getting a good job: Schumpeter, page 61. As more firms have set up their own "corporate universities", they have become less willing to pay for their managers to go to business school, page 55

Britain

- 50 The new government
Cameron's big embrace
- 51 Britain and Europe
The interpreter
- 52 Bagehot
Labour's scraps

International

- 53 Parenting and work
