

CONSERVATISM

On the cover

The new right is not an evolution of conservatism, but a repudiation of it: leader, page 9. How conservatism has been eclipsed, page 16.

• Foreign savers mob China America and China are at each other's throats, but also in each other's pockets: leader, page 10. Foreign financiers look past the trade war and ramp up in China, page 56

• Our annual supplement: The World If Future scenarios...after page 38. It's worth reading crazy-sounding scenarios about the future: leader, page 12. Republicans owe much of their success to liberals who don't vote: Graphic detail, page 73
