

On the cover

The consequences of Donald Trump's betrayal of the Kurds: leader, page 11. Removing American troops from Syria triggered a war, abandoned an ally and acted against the national interest: briefing, page 21

• Cyril Ramaphosa is running out of time to reform South Africa: leader, page 13. The president promises big results—eventually, page 45

• The world's 19th-favourite airline Monopolists typically make high profits, underinvest and treat customers badly. That sounds a lot like BA. Time to end its dominant position at Heathrow, page 59

• Nordic noir: dirty money in Europe When it comes to dubious money flowing through the financial system, Europe needs more of a killer instinct: leader, page 14. A massive money-laundering scandal sullies the image of Nordic banks, page 69

• Half-marks for net zero Targets to reach net-zero carbon emissions are all the rage. They are a necessary but not sufficient condition for fighting climate change: leader, page 12. Greta Thunberg accuses rich countries of "creative carbon accounting". When it comes to measuring national emissions, she has a point, page 72
