"Special Forces" Innovation: How DARPA Attacks Problems
A look at the unique model of the agency that developed the internet, GPS, stealth technology, and a long list of other radical inventions
Regina E. Dugan and Kaigham J. Gabriel

Corporate Venturing Well-run corporate venture-capital funds can be as savvy and nimble as the best private VCs. Here's how to reap the benefits and avoid the pitfalls. Josh Lerner
The Strategy That Will Fix Health Care

Providers must lead the way in making value the overarching goal.

Michael E. Porter and Thomas H. Lee

Rethinking the Decision Factory

Structure knowledge work the way professional services firms do—with capabilities flowing to the projects that need them.

Roger L. Martin

Consulting on the Cusp of Disruption

Not even the most prestigious management consultancies are immune to the forces of change.

Clayton M. Christensen, Dina Wang, and Derek van Bever

Ferguson's Formula

Leadership lessons from one of the most successful coaches in the history of sports: the recently retired manager of the British football club Manchester United.

Anita Elberse with Sir Alex Ferguson

Chobani's Founder on Growing a Start-Up Without Outside Investors

Private equity investors had little to offer but money—which the author could get from his bankers, thanks to the company's quick success.

Hamdi Ulukaya

Diaspora Marketing

How communities of emigrants are helping emerging-market companies build global brands.

Nirmalya Kumar and Jan-Benedict E.M. Steenkamp

Scaling up a business without VCs
Entrepreneurs Feel Closer to God Than the Rest of Us Do
Why do people who launch companies pray more often than everyone else?

Define how your top people behave—with their input.

To raise your company’s standing in the public’s eye, don’t spin a better story. Actually change.

What’s making Africa boom?

"I’m not looking for Michelin stars"

Husband-and-wife entrepreneurs clash over who gets to be CEO—and who stays home with the kids.

The owner of eponymous restaurants in Los Angeles and New York talks about his early apprenticeship, initial adversity, and partnership with the actor Robert De Niro.