SPOTLIGHT ON THE ART OF DECISION MAKING

62  Deciding How to Decide  It's impossible to eliminate risk from strategic decision making, but executives can significantly improve their chances of success by expanding their understanding of the decision support tools that work best in highly uncertain situations. Hugh Courtney, Dan Lovallo, and Carmina Clarke

72  You Can't Be a Wimp—Make the Tough Calls  A legendary adviser of CEOs explains how great executives master the challenges of a complex and continually changing environment. Ram Charan, interviewed by Melinda Merino

90  Beyond the Echo Chamber  What does it take to be a good decision maker? A new study shows that it's exposure to diverse people and ideas. Alex "Sandy" Pentland

88  What Makes Strategic Decisions Different  Most decision-making research focuses on one type of decision, and it's not the type that's most challenging for managers. Phil Rosenzweig
THE BIG IDEA

Strategy: The Uniqueness Challenge

Why do some of the most promising companies receive only limited analyst coverage? Because understanding their strategies takes a lot of effort.

Todd Zenger

What We’ve Learned from the Financial Crisis

The financial shock of 2008 was at least as big as that of the Great Depression—but the reaction was smarter.

Justin Fox

Dismantling the Sales Machine

Reps can’t sell to savvy customers by adhering to strict processes. They need to use judgment and creativity, challenging customers with new insights and unexpected solutions.

Brent Adamson, Matthew Dixon, and Nicholas Toman

THE HBR INTERVIEW

“I Try to Spark New Ideas”

The International Monetary Fund’s managing director shares her views on leadership, women in power, and spearheading change in a complex organization. Christine Lagarde, interviewed by Adi Ignatius

47 HOW I DID IT

Rakuten’s CEO on Humanizing E-Commerce

The world’s third-largest internet shopping site operates more like a bazaar than a superstore. Hiroshi Mikitani

117 THE GLOBE

Delivering World-Class Health Care, Affordably

Innovative hospitals in India are pointing the way. Vijay Govindarajan and Ravi Ramamurti